"Jacky," Look Out for Miss King. Detective!

Jack's ashore on Manhattan Isle this week with the visit of the North Atlantic Squadron to the Hudson River. And whenever Jack in any great numbers gets shore leave some of him is Hable to be bitten by the bee of desertion. This is a bad habit that Uncle Sam tries to discourage among his sailor boys, and his Chief Discourager is Miss Edith King, a pretty girl with knack of ferre ing out the sallor lad's hiding place and capturing him. Miss king is diffident about talking of herself, and nothing about her has ever been in print before, but TO-MOR-HOW'S SUNDAY WORLD will contain ruises she uses Teaching Little Alligators Manners.

The strangest school in New York City is the place where they teach young alligators the sort of manners that will be necessary to gain them a place in reptilian society. Doesn't seem nardly possible, but such a school really exists, and a story about it in TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY WORLD will make you sit up and declare that this liftle town is certainly the most remarkable village in the country.

Many of these nuns are Americans, and interest in them is now aroused by the visit to New York of the "Bishop of the Lepers" to solicit aid for the unfortunate people. In TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY WORLD a startling story is told of the leper colony.

The Romance of a Poor Southern Girl.

Bometimes fairy stories happen in real life. The case of the beautiful Mrs. James B. Haggin, mistress of the most beautiful home in the South, the wife of one of the richest men in the world, is one of these fairy tales. For Mrs. Haggin was a very poor little girl and how she has come to be the "Lady Bountiful" of her own birthplace reads like a romance. It's a pretty story and every one will like to read it in TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY WORLD.

New York's Greaest Moving Day.

This has been a week of moving days for all New York. Never before have so many families changed habitation. Why is it? Why is the population shifting as it never did before? There are reasons, and they will be told in TO-MORROW'S SUNDAY WORLD.

There is a new card that will give him a long lead in the social vaudeville. That is the discovery that John D. has a great singing voice, and if he hadn't made a billion as the head of an institution whose policy is "Silenee," he could have achieved fame as a neat sentimental opera singer.
